Nixon, Gromyko Firm Plans For Brezhnev Visit to U.S.

By Murrey Marder

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (WP) .-Plans for Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to visit the United States next spring were reaffirmed in talks Monday between President Nixon and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, American sources con-

The Brezhnev visit plans, first reported during the Moscow sumconference in May, are based on the assumption that President Nixon will win reelection. For that reason, neither side is expected to make an official announcement of the trip until after Election Day, Nov. 7.

President Nixon officially in-vited the top three Soviet leaders to visit the United States, Mr. Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. Soviet sources said at that time that the first visit most probably would be made by Mr. Brezhnev, rather than all three.

Presidential National Security Adviser Henry A. Kissinger said in Moscow that the visit was expected after the American election campaign, adding jokingly. "I think the nervous system of foreigners is not quite up to that Ziegler Responds

White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler, without directly dis-cussing the Nixon-Gromyko talk about a Brezhnev visit, recalled, in response to questions, the President's invitation and said that "details for that visit are still in the process of being worked out." Mr. Ziegler also said that Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev will arrive in Washington "in the very near future" for the expected completion of Thomas D. Barr, counsel for accords on expanded U.S.-Soviet trade. Other sources said the date depends on when negotiations under way reach accords.

Charged Computer Monopoly

IBM, Justice Dept. to Explore Settling 1969 Anti-Trust Suit

By Morton Mintz

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (WP).-International Business Machines Corp. and government anti-trust lawyers will meet at the Justice Department Priday to explore the possibility of settling a 3 1/2-yearold suit that accuses IBM of monopolizing the multi-billion-dollar computer industry. The suit—which the department refused to discuss-is one of the biggest anti-monopoly acment and, sources say, is the most important such action now

If there is to be a Mr. Bickfeld also reported that decree to end the suit, the terms probably would not be worked out ferences to the public. If the meeting on Friday fails to lead to genuine progress toward a settlement, the Justice Department is under a court order to disclose in advance of a trial what remedy it wants should it win.

"I want a careful, well thoughtout, workmanlike job, letting this court know exactly what you want should you prevail against IBM," U. S. District Judge David N. Edelstein told Raymond M. Carlson of the department's Anti-Trust Division at a pre-trial conference on Sept. 26.

Labor Supports Wilson Quest for New EEC Deal

BLACKPOOL, England, Oct. 4 (Reuters).—Opposition leader Harold Wilson today won clear Labor party support for his policies on the European Economic Community, thereby pointing the way on the suropean geometric Community, thereby pointing the way to an end of in-fighting on the party's most divisive issue.

Facing a crisis threatening his leadership of the party, Mr. Wilson persuaded Labor's 71st annual conference to pass by almost a two-to-one ratio a leadership statement reaffirming the party's official line on the KEC. This calls for renegotiation of the terms accepted by Frime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative government for Britain's entry into the EEC next Jan. 1. But the vote avoided the alter-native feared by party leaders an outright rejection of entry.

Mr. Wilson in effect today put his reputation on the block, and won his gamble. The vote for the leadership's middle-way policy was 3,407,000 in favor and 1,802,-000 against. There are 1,200 delegates at the conference but leaders of the big labor unions wote in the name of all their

A militant left-wing resolution submitted by Britain's second largest union, the Amalgamated Engineers, was narrowly defeated, by 3,076,000 votes to 3,958,000. This called for rejection of British entry on any terms.

Many conference o'corvers felt that Mr. Wilson's passionate final address in the Common Market debate had significantly influenced voting patterns.

Stiff Conditions Endorsed A resolution setting stiff conditions for British entry was passed by 3,335,000 votes to 2,867,-This resolution poses conditions for British entry that the EEC could not accept—including the abandonment of the community's common agricultural policy. But conference observers were confident that today's proceedings would leave a future Labor government free to try to maintain British membership while it sought a better deal for Britain in the EEC.

Mr. Wilson today attacked the president of the KEC Executive Commission, Sicco Mansbolt, for saying that a future British Labor government would not be able to renegotiate Britain's entry

Mr. Wilson told Labor party delegates that there had been "clumsy attempts from outside the conference and the hall to condition this debate"

He referred to a statement made by Mr. Mansholt in Brussels yesterday that Britain would never be able to renegotiate the entry terms agreed to by the Conservative government of Mr. Heath. Mr. Wilson added: "As a matter of procedure, this conference will not be dictated to by an

"I am very lucky-I know that," Mr. Craig said. He said he was convinced the attempt on his life was made by the Irish Republican Army.

"I don't know what they wanted whether to kill a loyalist leader or produce a loyalist backlash," he said. "Obviously somebody is trying pretty desperately to escalate the situation. There have been signs that they are trying to bring out the two freligious communities at each other's throats."

Pope, Heath Agree on Need To Bolster Ulster Moderates

By Paul Hofmann

ROME, Oct. 4 (NYT).-Pope Paul VI and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain discussed ways to end violence in Northern Ireland, in a cordial but inconclusive meeting today.

The head of the Roman Cath-olic Church and the British government's leader reportedly agreed that moderate elements in Ulster must be strengthened.

A mood of disillusionment over what could and could not be done in the near future to cool passions in Northern Ireland was apparent in brief formal addresses that Pope Paul and Mr. Heath exchanged following a 40-minute private talk.

The Pope said it was his "prayerful hope that peace in justice may soon be established in Northern Treiand

"We trust that whatever obstacles hinder the solution of the present problem will speedily be eliminated. We extend our good wishes to all those author-ities who are sincerely and patiently trying to solve this prob-lem without violence and in a peaceful, just and fair way." Pope Paul's rather bland remarks could be interpreted as a cautious endorsement of efforts to bring about four-way talks by the British and Irish governments at the Catholic and Protestant communities in Ulster. The prime minister said that "it remains our firm purpose : work for the ending of the violence in Northern Ireland" and for the establishment there of the "peace and justice for which Your Holiness hopes and prays."

Mr. Heath added: "The power of political leaders in our democratic society is of course severely limited. We can do certain things. We can try to set certain changes in motion—but in the end we return to the responsibility of the individual and of the family."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (NYT). Bombs dropped by the United States in Southeast Asia in the first nine months of 1972 exceeded the tounage dropped during all of the previous year, Pentagon statistics show.

Data obtained from the Defense Department disclosed that more than 800,000 tons of "air ammunition" has been used nver South Vietnam, North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos between Jan. 1 and Sept. 30, 1972, as compared with 763,160 tons during all of

The increase, Defense Department officials contended, resulted chiefly from stepped-up tactical support of Saigon's troops since the start of the Communist offensive last March 30, and from resumed systematic bombings of North Vietnam for the first time since 1968.

Up-to-date figures on United States air operations in Indochina were supplied by the Pentagon to the Senate Subcommittee on Refugees and were then made available to The New York Times. Thus, according to Pentagon figures, "air munitions" expended over Southeast Asia between Jan 1, 1971, and Sept. 30, 1973, added up to about 1,560,000 tons. The precise total for the last month is not yet available, but the confirmed count through Aug. 31 is 1,465,287, and estimates for September are roughly 100,000

The five-year total of Allied bombings of Germany in World War II was 1,554,000 tons. The total during the three years of the Korean War, between 1950 and 1963, was 635,000 tons—less than the tonnage dropped on Indochina in any year since 1966. In that year, 496,319 tons of "air munitions" were used.

Staff members of the Senate Subcommittee on Refugees said that an analysis of the Pentagon States bombings of Indoching during the 48 months between 1965 and 1968, in the Johnson administration, totaled 3,225,808 tons, while 3,829,992 tons were dropped during 44 months between 1969 and 1972 in the Nixon administration.

Most of the bombing data was provided to the Senate subcommittee, which is headed by Sen.
Edward M. Kennedy, D., Masz., in a letter dated Sept. 22, from
J. Fred Buzhardt, general counsel of the Defense Department. More up-to-date figures were obtained from the Pentagon by The New York Times.

Testimony last week before the Kennedy subcommittee by State Department and Defense Department officials had shown that between May and September, 1972, United States aircraft had dropped 4,280 "smart bombs" on North Vietnam. These bombs, known technically as "Mary 84s," are missiles guided to their targets by laser beams. According to that testimony, United States aircraft had also used anti-personnel bombs against North Vietnamese crews of ground-to-air missiles and anti-aircraft batteries, but their number was not given.

Then, at a press conference on July 6, Mr. Laird was again asked about seeding operations. He repeated his denial concerning military operations over North Vietnam and declined comment on possible rainmaking operations elsewhere.

national political campaigns in recent years was turned inside out yesterday by the Democratic presidential nominee and aimed back at Republicans who preach Sen. George McGovern, addressing a roomful of friendly civic and political leaders in Manhattan, spelled out his own fivepoint program for curbing street crime in America. The South Dakota senator told them that the "law and order" myth usually blames Democrats for not caring about violent crime or even having more concern for the rights of criminals than for their victims. "Nothing is further from re-

"Mr. Nixon and his administration are responsible in part for this myth so they can mask a record of astounding failure in the field of crime behind a veil of 'law and order' rhetoric which grows more strident as the muggings and murders and rapes in our cities continue to rise."

Nader Sees Constitutional Crisis

Congress Is Said to Abdicate Power to President, Business

By Mary Russell

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (WP). -Ralph Nader said yesterday that his study of Congress "shows convincingly we are in the midst of a grave constitutional crisis" because Congress is giving its constitutional powers away to committee chairmen, the executive bureaucracy and special-interest groups.

At a news conference to unveil the first part of his current study of Congress, a $1.95 paper-back book called "Who Runs Congress—the President, Big Business or You?", Mr. Nader, the consumer-rights advocate, concluded that the President and business control Congress.

Asked if President Nixon was unduly sympathetic to big corporations, Mr. Nader said: "This administration is not sympathetic to corporations, it is indentured to corporations.' He charged that the Nixon administration was easily "the most corrupt in history" but said he was not calling for the President's removal because that would be "like replacing the rose on the top of a trash heap."

The corruption goes all the way down to the bottom of the buresucracy, he said, and unless became aroused, removing the President would change

Mr. Nader suggested that Congress might win back its lost power from the executive branch and special-interest groups by reforming itself. He called for a special session of Congress to enact reform at the regular session's end in 1973.

Changes are needed, Mr. Nader said, in committee jurisdiction, seniority, secrecy, rules, campaign finance, disclosure of interest groups, absenteeism, staff and information systems.

Echoing themes put forth in the paperback, which contains critical assessments of some of the most powerful men in Congress, Mr. Nader said:

• Special interests control Congress through campaign contributions and lobbying, which provides the kind of information on a bill Congress members and their staffs "cannot produce or ed that 30 percent of a member's time is spent on cases for constituents. Congress is ruled by archaic procedures and autocratic committee chairmen; it permits too many closed hearings and overates under rules that frustrate its democratic intentions. The book, written by three of Mr. Nader's most trusted assistants, is intended to whet interest for the rest of the study. Still to come are 485 profiles of members of Congress, which are to be released around Oct. 18, studies on each committee and a series of volumes on such topics as conflict of interest in Congress and campaign financing.

FAA to Probe At Jet's Controls

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP).

The Federal Aviation Administration said today that it is investigating published reports that Democratic presidential candidate Sen. George McGovern was allowed to take over the controls of a jet airliner in flight.

The FAA said that it has received from an airline pilot a newspaper clipping saying that Sen, McGovern, a World War II bomber pilot, was allowed at the controls of a Boeing-727 on a recent flight from New York to Sioux City, Iowa.

The Rocky Mountain News, in Denver, also reported that a United Air Lines pilot faced disciplinary action for allowing the senator to pose for photographs at the controls chartered jet on a New York-Washington flight.

A spokesman for United said that its pilot was admonished for allowing Sen. McGovern to sit at the controls of the chartered The airline said that plane. The airline said that while the senator was in the cockpit against PAA regulations, the co-pilot handled the controls.

The FAA said that the pilot who sent in the clipping asked whether the pilot of Sen. Mc-Govern's plane was violating regulations against allowing a person unqualified as a jet pilot to control a jet aircraft.

Americans: President Nixon deserves your support.

No matter where you are.

Whether you're in Paris, Rome, London—or wherever—you can cast a ballot in the important upcoming election.

President Nixon deserves your support because he has introduced and applied common sense to a foreign policy that aims for nothing short of a permanent peace and a completely secure America.

He visited Peking in February of this year where he made a start toward improving relations between the U.S. and the People's Republic of China. It ended 23 years of hostility between the two countries.

He went to Moscow in May where he negotiated agreements with the Soviet Union on nuclear strategic arms limitation.

He has called a halt to the "crisis diplomacy" of the 1960's and has worked hard to reduce tension in such troubled areas as the Middle East. The Nixon Doctrine has given our allies the reality of self-reliance, and will continue to help our allies help themselves.

But even as the President has traveled the world for peace he has maintained that true peace can only be achieved through strength. Thus he has kept up America's military guard and has refused to do anything which would weaken our NATO allies.

At home, the President has fought inflation, drug abuse and crime in the streets. He has created 3 million new jobs, and has proposed to Congress a Federal Revenue Sharing plan to reduce the heavy burden of property taxes.

This is why Americans everywhere need President Nixon now more than ever.

Here's how to vote for President Nixon:

Two Win Suit On Arrests in Peace Protest

D.C. Judge Assails Seizure of Innocents

By Lawrence Meyer WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (WP) -Two imnocent passersby arrested in police sweeps during anti-war demonstrations here last year were awarded $9,000 in civil damages yesterday by a judge who severely criticized police tactics in his ruling.

Judge Gerhard Gesell, awarding the first civil damages in liti-gation growing out of the 1871 May Day demonstrations here, said that constitutional guarantees of citizens rights "must be zcalously safeguarded," particular larly "in times of stress and

He swarded the two men $3,000 each in compensatory damages, $500 each in punitive damages and a total of $2,000 in legal fees.

In ruling for the two men, who were among the 7,000 persons arrested on May 3, 1971, Jodge Gesell rejected the argument that the demonstrations had presented police with an emergency situation and that those circumstances should be taken into account.

"The court," the judge said. "does not feel that it should take into account in any way that circumstances prevailing in the community at the time. The constitutional protections that are available to citizens of this comtry are protections which must be scalously safeguarded and the appropriate time to safeguard them particularly is in times of stress and strain.

They were not protected here by the authorities and there is nothing in the circumstances of the arrest which led the court to feel there was an emergency coodition confronting the police at the point where these arrests were made that would in any way have justified the conduct of the police officers."

Of the more than 18,000 persons arrested during the 1571 May Day demonstrations, only a handful were ever brought to criminal-court trial.

In the civil suit decided yes-terday, two Labor Department employees, Peter Roberts and Dennis Lieberman, testified that they were wearing no anti-war buttons or other symbols when stopped by a policeman. They told him they were going to work and showed Labor Department identification, the; testified, and the officer replied: "My mistake, gentlemeo," or words similar to that, and let them go on.

About 10 to 15 seconds later Mr. Roberts testified, the same policeman and another one "grabbed both of us and started pushing us." When Mr. Roberts and Mr. Lieberman asked the officers what they were doing, one responded: "The sergeant said to arrest everybody." Neither man was allowed to make a telephone call until more than 17 hours after their arrests.

The action by Mr. Roberts and Mr. Lieberman is only one of perhaps 40 sults filed charging false arrest in the May Day police sweeps. Two suns known to have been filed on seeking behalf of 35 persons seeking

PARIS, Oct. 4 (AP).-A small explosive charge ripped off the door and damaged part of the store front of the Palestine book shop here early today.

The shop specializes in works on liberation movements throughout the world and pro-Palestinian literature. The shop is also used as a headquarters for Palestinian organizations.

Police said that a Jewish group calling itself Massada claimed responsibility for the blast, which caused no injuries.

Shelves inside the shop were knocked down and many of the books in stock, mostly on political subjects, were damaged.

Police found a cardboard sign insurbed with the Hebrew letters Massada on the windshield of a car near the book shop. Massada is believed to be a rightist Jewish organization.

Police said that it was ap-parently the first time a Jewish group staged an attack in France.

A Syrian protest to the UN was expected. Mr. Fattal is a veteran diplomat with seven years' ex-perience in Washington and at the UN. He holds the post of director of international organizations in the Foreign Ministry. A spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said no reason for the action had been given by the

Russians Less Aware Than Americans

U.S. Environment Official Tours Soviet Pollution Areas

By Robert G. Kaiser

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (WP).-A top American environment official who has just finished a 10-day tour of the Soviet Union said today that the Russiens are less conscious of pollution and less sophisticated about dealing with it than Americans.

But he praised the Soviet Union's efforts in the field, and noted that "they do have an opportunity to start doing something about environmental problems at an earlier point (intheir economic development! than

The official was Russell E Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, who toured several re-mote parts of the country after successfully negotiating a Soviet-American agreement on exchanges in the field of environmental protection.

Mr. Train was the first American ever to visit one of the most controversial factories in the Soviet Union, a giant cellulose plant on the edge of Lake Baikal, one of the largest bodies of fresh || water in the world. The factory has been sharply criticized in the Soviet press for excessively polluting the lake.

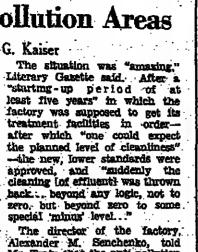

Mr. Train and his delegation of four other Americans had a romplete tour of the factory's treatment facilities for the large quantity of dirty wastes it produces. They even drank the polluted offluent at the end of the treatment process, just before it was to go back into the lake.

Conscientions Effect

In a written report on his trip, Mr. Train said he thought "it was a mistake to locate the plant on Lake Baikal in the first place." But once it was there, "The Soriet government appears to be making a conscientious effort to avoid damage to the lake."

He also noted, however, that the setting of standards [of eleauliness; on the basis of protecting the drinking safety of the water for humans would hare little or no relevance to protecting the unique ecosystem of the lake, which has evolved around a much purer quantity of

The influential weekly news-paper Literary Gazette apparently agrees with Mr. Train. has been blisteringly critical of anti-pollution: measures around Balkal, and of the cellulose factory in particular.

The director of the factory, Alexander M. Senchenko, told Mr. Train that the anti-poliution measures there were successful. The same Mr. Senchenko was personally criticised by Literary Gazette. He was quoted by the paper as saying, "Don't worry. The lake's capacity for cleaning itself is colossal."

Mr. Train observed that his trip had taught him that the struggle between industry and ecology in the Soviet Union was ery similar" to that contest in the United States.

The U.S. delegation also visited Leningrad and Yakutsk, a city of 100,000 that is built on permafrost that is more than a thousand feet thick in northwest Siberia. Exchanges of information about life in these conditions (similar to those found in northern Alaska) will go on under the new Soviet-

Mr. Train's group was also the first American delegation to see a game preserve at Barguzin, more than a thousand square miles in area. This Siberian preserve was established in 1915 to save the Barguzin sable. It now contains wildlife of many kinds. Mr. Train was told that only about a thousand Soviet citizens visit the preserve each

Everywhere he went, Mr. Train said, Soviet hospitality was overwhelming, 'and there were always a lot of toasts." This morning Mr. Train saw Nikolai N. Podgorny, the Soviet president, for 90 minutes. Mr. Podgorny was "fairly familiar" with the new Soviet-American ecology agreement, Mr. Train said, and he talked at length in general terms-about the importance of protecting the en-

Sana Says Aden's Forces Shell Towns

BEIRUT, Oct. 4 (UPI).-Tha border war between the two Yemens has flared up again, according to North Yemeni Information Minister Ahmad Dahmash, quoted by the Middle East News Agency today.

In a dispatch from Sana, capital of North Yemen, the agency quoted Mr. Dahmast as saying yesterday: "Southern Yemeni forces are still shelling the cities of the republic along the border despite the fact Democratic (Southern) Yemen has requested a cease-fire."

Earlier yesterday, a North Yemeni military spokesman said that seven days of fighting had subsided and the border was calm after Southern troops evacuated the Northern town of Qaataba.

There were no immediate reports of the situation along the oorder today.

100 Reported Killed

Mr. Dahmash said that more than 100 persons were killed and hundreds wounded in the attack on Qaataba, which the Northerners claim was captured after a 15-hour air and artillery bombardment Sunday.

Southern officials denied ever flying planes against Qaataba or seizing the town and called for a cease-fire—a call that the Northerners then rejected "until Qaataba is freed."

In a statement released by the Southern Yemeni Embassy in Beirut, the Adeni regime today accused the North of making false accusations that foreign pilots were flying its aircraft on bombing missions as a pretext to expel foreign advisers.

Beirut newspapers have quoted official Sana sources as saying the government was planning to expel Soviet military advisers because Soviet pilots flew warplanes for Southern Yemen in the latest fighting.

A North Yemeni official said that the South was using "foreign" pilots, but he did not specify their nationality.

HANNOVER, West Germany, Oct. 4 (AP).—A check of the per-sonnel file of Heinrich Illers, accused by Mrs. Beate Klarsfeld of being Nazi Gestapo chief for Paris, does not support Mrs. Klarsfeld's charges.

This was announced today by Kurt Partzsch, social minister for Lower Saxony, who began preliminary investigations for possible disciplinary proceedings against Mr. Illers.

Mrs. Klarsfeld, who has led a private hunt for alleged Nazi war criminals, said at a Bonn press conference yesterday that Mr. Illers was "solely responsible" for a deportation shipment of 2.168 prisoners on July 2, 1944, during which 536 died of hunger and other causes.

On Truth and Taxes

Ah, so. Throughout the month of September the White House assured all the world that President Nixon would never ask for another tax increase. That sweeping guarantee covered not only this year, but the next four. When this newspaper politely suggested that the promise was composed in equal parts of fraud and malarkey, the White House grew surly and ahusive in its efforts to correct us. It seems like only vesterday.

But times have changed, evidently. Now it is October and the same White House is pressing Congress to enact a draconian limit on spending as "insurance" against the tax increases that suddenly loom ahead of us.

On Sept. 7 the President's assistant for domestic affairs, John D. Ehrlichman, told a press conference. 'The President will not ask for any higher taxes, period." On Oct. 2 the same Mr. Ebrlichman said, at a similar press conference, "There are basically only three ways to avoid higher taxes." The first two were congressional abstinence, of which he saw few signs this year, and presidential vetoes which, we will gratuitously note, are usually attached to the wrong hills. In any event, only the third way, a firm spending limit, seems this month to offer Mr. Ehrlichman much hope of saving the country from the higher taxes which we were told last month we were entirely safe from in any

The reason for the administration's sudden turnabout is obvious. It is the nature of this administration to seize each tactical advantage as it appears, with no great regard for consistency and candor. Last December's tax cut has left a large hole in the budget that will, sooner or later, hove to be filled. In early spring, the administration began hinting heavily that the deficit was all the work of a spendthrift and uncontrollable Congress. That was the general theme until late summer but, when Sen. McGovern proposed in August to raise the tax rates on capital gains, Mr. Nixon saw an opportunity to score a point. He had Mr. Ehrlichman make his absurd statement that a second Nixon administration would never ask for a tax increase. Now that the public attention has left the McGovern tax proposal, the President has swung back to his basic tactic of setting up the Democrats in Congress to take the responsibility for the fiscal difficulties ahead.

The Democratic leaders of Congress are now quarrelling among themselves over the President's relterated demands for the spending limit bill. The decent and straightforward thing would be simply to tell the United States that, with the recovery of the economy, it is ricber than ever and well able to pay higher taxes to meet its public responsibilities. But that is, apparently, too much for the voters to bear. While Mr. Nixon and the congressional Democrats agree on nothing else, they can agree on

Raid on Election Reform

President Lyndon B. Johnson once said that federal statutes regulating the collection and expenditure of political money were "more loophole than law." The new Federal Election Campaign Act which went Into effect only five months ago was a major corrective effort.

But already the unions and corporations which were comfortable with the old status out are busily at work subverting the new law. With one vote to spare, the House of Representatives has scissored a hage new loophole for the convenience of these special

The House-passed measure exempts unions and corporations from Section 611, which makes it a crime for anyone holding a government contract to provide a campaign contribution "directly or indirectly" to any party or candidate. Many unions are technically government contractors because they receive grants to administer manpower training and other federal programs.

Section 611 has actually been in effect since 1940 and was only carried over in the new law but like many other provisions of federal electoral law had been genially ignored. It ceased to be a dead letter earlier this year when Common Cause won a court sult against an aerospace contractor on the ground that the firm's management of a political fund collected from its employees constituted an "indirect" contributionwhich is putting it mildly.

Despite a public pledge by House Speaker Albert and Rep. Ford, the minority leader, that no amendment to the new election law would be permitted without prior public hearings, this proposed change was slipped on the consent calendar a few days ago.

The bill won the two-thirds majority required under the consent procedure because many Republicans want to keep corporate money flowing and many Democrats want to keep union money flowing. But it is long past time for both parties to move toward reliance upon individual contributors and away from huge funds assembled under either corporate or union auspices. The public looks to the Senate to defend the integrity of election reform and not yield to this outrageous, siy and cynical raid on the law by the loophole seekers.

The UN in Namibia

The appointment of a United Nations representative for Namible (South-West Africa) with the consent of the South African government is an interesting experiment well worth trying. In selecting a veteran diplomat from Switzerland, a country that is not a memher of the United Nations, Secretary-General Waldheim was clearly going out of his way to avoid giving offense to Alfred Escher can thus go quietly about his UN assignment of trying to bring about "self-determination and independence" for Namibia's 750,000 people, free of the embarressment that would come if his own government were having to take a stand on this assue in the General Assembly or Security Council. He nonetheless will have to function under highly restrictive rules.

It is annoying that Mr. Escher's headquarters will be in New York rather than. Namibia, and he evidently must clear each visit with South Africa, which has never owned the country and whose League of Nations mandate over the territory was vacated by the United Nations six years ago.

In these circumstances it is imperative that, once inside the country. Mr. Escher have complete freedom to go anywhere and to confer with whomever he chooses-for example, the deputy leader of the black South-West African People's Organization who is currently under a banning order hy South African authorities. It is on the questions of freedom of movement and access to people that the value of Mr. Escher's experiment will he judged.

Decisions in Denmark

Europe has won a hattle, but has not yet won the war. The vote of the Danish electerate in favor of joining the Common Market is perfectly clear cut and enough to satisfy both the requirements of Danish law and the wishes of the supporters of the Market in that country and elsewhere. But it does not wipe out the defeat administered to the EEC cause less than two weeks ago by the electors of Norway. Beyond that, the two-to-one majority in Denmark is a good deal less than it would have been a few years

-From the Finnneial Times (London).

The Danish decision to join the European Economic Community has been given added drama by Jens Otto Krag's resignation as premier. To retire at this moment is to conclude a distinguished political career with a flourish. It must also puzzle a good many people in Denmark and throughout the Community who had been expecting him to lead his country into the EEC next January. But his departure, sudden though it is, will neither put Danish membership in doubt nor change the policies Denmark can be expected to pursue within the Community. Mr. Krag has personal reasons for wisbing to leave office now that the referendum has heen won, and his resignation does not affect the significance of the national decision which may come to be seen as something of a landmark in the history of Western Europe.

A Talk With Marcos on Using Martial Law

By Lee Lescaze

MANILA.—President Ferdinand F. Marcos said that his martial law administration must succeed in starting a change of Filininos' attitudes toward government and society.

"If we fail in this, then the whole exercise is futile," the president said during an interview granted this week.

The Philippine leader described himself as having been powerless before martial law to institute reforms or to handle the nation's problems of law and order, largely because he had lost credibility. Speaking of the violence and corruption that flourished here, the president said, "There was no authority to stop it, because they

Marcos puts much of the blame on Filipino politicians, "When the president is Marcos the lame duck, there is a tendency (for politicians) to move out on their own," the 55-year-old president

Politics has "always heen our obsession," and politics had hecome a series of maneuvers all centering on who would be the next president, Marcos said, "Issues have never been too important here and this kind of politics is what has corrupted the whole society."

In the first 10 days of martial law, Marcos said, "we have neu-tralized the potential focal points of violence and criminality-other than the Communists," Philippine soldiers have had firefights with elements of the Maoist New People's Army in five provinces since martial law was declared, but the president believes that his surprise proclamation enabled him to prevent any non-Communist groups from forming an armed opposition.

In answer to a question, Marcos said that had he attempted to crack down on political warlords without imposing martial law be would have failed and would perhaps have increased the threat to his government,

900 Detained

"It is possible that some of the warlords who were threatening the national government indirectly might have heen impulsive enough to join (the Communists) in fighting the government," Marcos said

About 900 people have been detained under martial law, 200 of them in the Manila area, Marcos said. All those on the arrest lists prepared in advance of martial law have been apprehended, he added.

"I have ordered the halt of arrests," Marcos said. This week he also ordered the release of all ciergymen who had been detained he expects that more releases will follow soon.

"Some were detained to eliminate rallying points for violent opposition," Marcos said, "But most of them are detained because we have the goods on them." The latter group presumably will be brought to trial.

The president said he hopes martial law can be lifted before the end of his present term in January 1974. "It is my fervent will be able to dismantle this structure of government," the president said.

Although the breakdown of law and order was the primary factor in his decision to declare martial law, Marcos said he was niso influenced by the economic orisis caused by the July flooding of central Luzon—the most dame ing natural disaster in Philippine history. Marcos said the floods contributed to what be called "the frustration, helplessness and desperation" of his people.

"It's ridiculous to talk of moving forward when the fields are covered with silt," the president said, "and another typhoon could hring a new disaster."

Congress had not passed the reconstruction bill for the flooded areas and the government had only about $73 million to spend on rehabilitation of the flooddamaged lands, Marcos estimated that was about 10 percent of the funds needed.

Getting the central Luzon area back to its preflood position still must take priority over the new reforms announced under martial sential for their re-election," Marcos said, Skeptics wonder if politicians will change their attitudes after a year or so of martial law or whether martial law might have to be prolonged to give Marcos's programs longer protection under his unchallenged as they were 40 years ago, for another great surge of innovative reform of foreign and domestic policy, and while there is a powerful case to be made for such reforms, he has not made it very well, and the country is in a far more conservative anti-Negro, anti-welfare mood than he has believed.

No doubt his own three explanations have some merit. He has falled to communicate his "real character and veracity to the voters." He came through at first as a more radical character than he really is, and has trimmed and changed to meet the mounting criticism, only to find that in trying to placate the Democratic pros he has created doubt both among the pros and the young supporters who carried him to the nomination.

Also, he has some personality problems which have nothing to do with his character or veracity. He seems stronger and more be lievable in his trip here to Bos-ton this week than be did in his first swing through New England several weeks ago, but somehow his voice, which is bland and monotonous, doesn't go with his words which are increasingly accusative and strident.

There is undoubtedly something in his charge that the press has paid more attention to his internal political squabbling and switching than it has to Nixon's spectacular changes in both domestic and foreign policy, and his troubles within the Republican National Committee. And while McGovern retains a remarkable composure and even a kind of biblical belief in the rightness of his cause and the wickedness of the opposition, it is always hard to launch an effective attack on the character of a President in the White House, which is what he is now doing more and more.

Nothing infuriates George Mc-Govern more than the suggestion that somehow three out of every four people polled are saying that they find Nixon more believable than McGovern, and this seems to have encouraged him to sweeping statements which even the critics of the President find hard to justify.

Not so long ago, the senator was saying that the Nixon administration was "the most corrupt in recent history;" and this was changed to the 'most corrupt since the days of Warren Harding;" and now this week it has become "the most corrupt in the two centuries of American government."

Well, it is pretty bad, but as Andrew Jackson is said to have advised at the battle of New Orleans, "better elevate them guns little lower." There is a solid and accurate case to be made against the President's record, but after his startling innovations in China and the Soviet Union, it only weakens a good case to charge him with "the worst leadership in our history."

Hard Press? Has the press been harder on McGovern's character than on the President's? Maybe so, but you couldn't get many votes for that proposition around the White House, where the old Nixon aides will never forgive the reporters for telling the truth about Nixon's long record of political dirty tricks. McGovern had an enthusiastic reception in Boston this week and a mammoth crowd of 35,000 or 40,000 and this may, as the senator believes, indicate a turn in the campaign. But new tactics and fireside talks are not likely to turn around an electorate which seems to have made up its mind, not that George McGovern is a man lacking in ability or character, but that he is crying for changes a majority of the people don't like at a time when they're longing merely for a little calm and quiet.

The Mounting Crisis Inside Soviet Union 12

A Russian, living in Leningrad has described in devastating detail the poor conditions in the immediate environs of Leningrad Last June there were no lemons no fruit except poor-quality cherries, no lettuce, no vegetables except shriveled carrots, turnips end potatoes. Stalin is very much in vogue and the oppressors are visital of the power their predecessors bad as Stalin's agents, ignorant or reckless of the fate most of their predecessors met. Above all they want to ovoid facing the responsibility for the disastrous do mestic situation. Their concern now is: to keep the world from knowing went is going on, to blame the plight so visible to the peasants and workers on a playsible enemy, and to earn the hard currency to huy their way out of the crisis in the American market.

This, one insider notes, is the true reason for imposing the vicious emigration tax on the Jews. Not because they desire so much to punish the Jews or to salve Soviet pride. But because they have coelly reckoned that Western Jews, mostly Americans. can be got to pay over the next period as much as $500 million in ransom, and that one-half hillion dollars is vitally necessary to feed Russia. That is why they, continue to endure tourists-because they spend hard currency.

However, L'Unita, main organ of the Italian Communist party, ignored the disclaimer and in a vitriolic front-page note said yes-terday that Mr. Agnelli was the only metal worker in Italy who

FASHION-The Three

Big Looks For Autumn

By Hebe Dorsey

DARIS, Oct. 4 (IHT).—The fall fashion chips are down. Three of the strongest trends are the blouson, angora knits and the slow but sure return of the dress. The blouson, a vaguely military; veguely athletic garment, is way ahead in the fashion race. Cropped at the waist, it sits nicely on the new, wider pants and skirts. Its young look makes it a Paris streets are full of blousons; the range is endless—vinyl, sucde, mohair, wool plaid, fur, fake fur, just name it. A pretty girl walked in Saint Germain des Pres the other day, looking like a huge powder puff. Her blousoo was of circular rings of multicolored marabou.

The newest ones, made of Borg fake fur, have a cuddly, teddy bear look. The kaskiest are of satin with names of American states appliqueed in the back. Designer Vicky Tiel puts blousons over black jersey jumpsuits.

The Dior boutique racks of them. Vog has a parti-cularly wide selection. Some are has pants and blousons of loden and satin. Marie Martine has deluxe, mink blousons trimmed with leather waistbands.

> Angora sweaters have also hit the fashion headlines hard. Because angora comes from a single factory in France, many yarn shops are completely sold out— leaving knit-it-yourselfers out in the cold. Among the ready-to-wear angora knits, the Timwear collection, designed by Karl La-gerfeld, is outstanding. His sweaters are cut with a soft round neckline and his color combinations are a subtle play on pastels. Emmanuelle Khanh is another talented designer whose sweaters, with deep batwing sleeves, have that new, wide-at-the-top silhouette first introduced by Kenzo for Jap.

At Marie Martine, all the madein-Italy angora sweaters went in a few days. The problem with angora is that it sheds. But Marcel Salem, owner of Marie Martine, claims that if you put an angors sweater into the refrigerator for 24 hours, it will stop shedding.

Finally, as much as women like pants (you can't beat them for comfort), they are now ready for dresses again. The black slik jersey dress is a new version of the old cocktail dress. English de-signer Jean Muir is fast making a niche for herself on the French market. Her much-copied dresses look like nothing on the racks. But once their understed elegance is perped up with jewel-ry (ivory preferably), high heels and a touch of color (such as a marabou shawl), they look great. This dress revival means a re-turn to the girly look and some designers, such as Vicky Tiel, are going even further in their next spring and summer collections. Vicky, for one, is bringing back

MUSIC IN FRANCE

Orchestre de Paris Opens Season

By David Stevens

DARIS, Oct. 4 (IHT) .- Opera is figuring heavily in the opening of the Paris music season, and not just at the Opera. The Orchestre de Paris opened its season last night under Georg Solti with a concert performance of the final act of "Die Götterdämmerung," and later this month it will have Schoenberg's one-act "Erwartung."

Lest night's splendid performance at the Théatre des Champs-Elysées, with a cast that Bayreuth or any place else might envy, has connotations for the Paris Opéra too. Sold was beginning his first full season at the head of the orchestra first full season at the head of the orthesizal last night, and after the first of the year he will begin a kind of mutual tryout as musical adviser of the Opera. If the association jells, it is tempting to wonder—after last night's performance—if the ill-fated "Ring" cycle that the Opera began under Wieland Wagner might finally reach its conclusion.

This opening concert was an unusual one, as orchestral programming goes. Wagner is a concert favorite, but usually in bleeding bits amputated from their context and outfitted with concert endings. Siegfried's funeral murch and the Immolation Scene are among the popular victims of this approach, but last night they were gloriously in place as climax and summation require three or four months to implement and this would prompt a rush to ship goods out of the country, he said.

Sources say the Finance Ministry favors an export surtax be-cause it would increase revenues. Mr. Komatsu said MITT has a three-point plan in mind to control exports: It would watch forsign markets for signs of disruption caused by Japanese exports;

it would advise industries concerned to voluntarily control shipments, "boldly and courageously" exercising its powers to control any experiers that balk and it would invoke Japan's Trade Control Law to directly restrain exports if the voluntary agreements do not work.

He said the new package will also include measures designed to boost imports. "We would like to increase imports by $1 billion in the coming year," he said. MITT estimates that 2 20 percent across-the-board tariff cut would result in a $200-million increase in imports per year.

Yugoslav Call to Curb Rich Raises Fear of Run on Banks

By Raymond H. Anderson

BELGRADE, Oct. 4 (NYT). Demands have been raised in Yugoslavia this month for curbs on so-called socialist multimillionaires and billionaires and are now reported to have created risks of a run on savings accounts by worried depositors.

The chairman of the Belgrade Economic Chamber, Simeon Zatexalo, has cautioned that the campaign seathst the well-to-do is having a negative effect on the business of the country's banks. The campaign began after a speech by President Tito Sept. 4 to shipyard workers in Rijeka in which he denounced an "amass ing of wealth" by some peopla in Yugoslavia since economic re-forms were adopted seven years

Tite Complains

President Tito complained that even some members of the League of Communists had accumulated wealth amounting to "hundreds of millions and even billions of old dinars."

Like most Yugoslavs, President Tito still thinks in old dinars, of which a million were equal to $600 and a billion to $600,000. The currency has been revalued at the rate of one new dinar for 100

In his speech, Marshal Tito particularly condemned a tendency of the multimillionaires and billionaires to spend their money on the construction of one or more stylish country home: in the mountains or along the Adrietic.

and others as permanent shelter. Understandably, the campaign against the wealthy has had an so-called middie elass, even though the campaign is still in the talking stage. The withdrawal of savings deposits has been striking in recent days, following the demands raised in the form of a drive to learn who the 'billionaires' are." said the savings-account manager of the Beogradska Banka.

At Behest of U.S. Firm French Court Orders Seizure

tribunal has ordered the seizure of a Chilean copper shipment arriving in France later this week at the request of the Braden

Kennecott Corp., court officials said today. They said the 1.25 tons of copper, valued at 6.8 million francs, will be put under court embargo upon the arrival later this week of the 10,351-ton West German ship Birte Oldendorff in Le

Havre. The court issued the order at the demand of the U.S. metal firm whose assets had been nationalised by the left-leaning Chilean government in July, 1971, along with other U.S.-owned copper interests. Kennecott, which claims indemnities for its nationalized assets, had warned all potential buyers of the nationalized copper they will face legal suits. It was first known case of seizura of the key Chilean export in any country since the nationalization of the foreign-owned mines.

of parliament now touring France called a news conference for tomorrow with Ambassador Pablo Neruda to discuss the French court move. The Chileans claim the U.S. companies have no right to demand seizure of the copper exports because Chilean courts have long ruled out any claims to indemnification on the ground the foreign firms have been drawing large benefits for many years from the metal industry.

More Suits Planned NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (Renters). -A spokesman for Kennecott said the company is planning further legal action in European countries in an effort to block payments for Chilean copper shipments. He did not give any specifics, however.

He confirmed that the action in Paris was, in effect, a holding action and there will be full-scale proceedings on the case after the copper arrives in France.

Westdeutsche Landesbank has a long term remedy for credit headaches.

There's got to be a good reason why so many companies all over the world - including giant multi-national concerns - come straight to Westdeutsche Landesbank when they're shopping around for credit terms. And generally look no further. You see, we have a very open-minded philosophy towards lending people money. If we think you've got a good reason for borrowing. we're on your side from the start. From then on, it's simply a matter of agreeing how much you want, and how quickly - or slowly - you'd like to pay it back. If you're in a hurry to repay us, we won't fight it. But wa know very well that major capital investment can take a long time to show a healthy return. Which is why the Westdeutsche Landesbank will offer you credit over a long term. 10 or even 15 years. At a fixed rate of interest. A package you'll find pretty hard to match. Anywhere.

Who we are

We'll come to you.

The Westdeutsche Landesbank is one of the biggest of all German benks. With total deposits of more than $ 13,000,000,000. Wa can do business with you wherever you are, and wherever you're planning a new development or further expansion. When you've got something big in mind that needs sound financial backing, just let us know.

Of course, if you're contemplating Industrial investment in Germany, we can do much more for you than just provide the necessary capital. Since our own home base is in the Ruhr, we know a lot about this pulsating heart of industrial Germany. Equally, we have a "special relationship" with no less than 800 universal savings banks and their mora than 15 000 local branches. Thus we cover every part of the country.

With our minute-by-minute flow of essential business information, and our skill at gauging future trends, we're good people to have working on the spot for you. Especially when you're manœuvring towards a merger or acquisition over here: in which case we can provide you with expert guidance - impartially, discreetly.

Where we are

You can contact us directly at the address below. We are also a partner in the worldwida Orion banking group. Remember our name -Westdautsche Landesbank.

The nine had the air of a singleton or a worthless East as dealer opened doubleton. When East produced the queen, South had something to think about. Fast would hearts, a weak two-bid, and West raised to four hearts hoping normally play the jack from Q-J. to keep the opponents from un-Somebody was falsecarding, ond South was inclined to suspect covering their probable spade fit. However, North was an aggressive East. East could no doubt work player and suspected what West was up to. He doubled for takeout that South had A-K-10 and out, and South was able to bid wished to inhibit a second-round

> So, after winning the second trick, South led a trump to knock out the ace East won and returned the club seven. South thought it over. If West had a small doubleton originally he was going to make the contract with any play. Bot if West had a singleton and was about to ruff it would be fatal to play high. West would ruff, and East would eventually make the setting trick with the club jack.

Satisfied with this impeccable reasoning. South played the club 10. He was not, however, satisfied with the result. West happily produced the unexpected jack and gave his partner a club ruff to set the contract.

THE DREAM AND THE DEAL The Federal Writers' Project, 1935-1943

By Jerre Mangionc. Illustrated, 416 pps. Little, Brown, fin

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

TT was a great crippled crosseyed onewinged goony bird-the Federal Writers' Project. Or so it appears to be when Jerre Mangione introduces us to It as it was settling down on its deathbed in 1939. A great crippled bird getting its neck wrung by the Dies Committee because it appeared to be the most vulnerable animal in the New Deal menagerie ... A crosseyed bird with its right claw hopelessly tangled in bureaucratic red tape and its left claw helplessly getting chewed off by New York City revolutionaries ... A most unlikely bird to begin with—simply because the Federal Government couldn't, on the one hand, pay writers to eschew their personal opinions and still expect them to be writers; and it couldn't, on the other hand, pay writers to say whatever they wanted to, and still survive as the Federal Government. ("We believe that Ithe books produced by the Federal Writers' Project] contain far less personal bias than is usually found in books dealing with the American scene," wrote the project's director, Henry G. Alsberg, in defense of his pet in 1939-as if a book's lack of personal bias were something to be proud of) And a great crippled cross-eyed onewinged goony hird is what Jerre Mangione, who was the project's national coordinating editor and is now a professor of English literature at the University of Pennsylvania, could easily have made of "The Dream and the Deal," his history of "The Federal Writers' Project, 1935-1943." For the whole story entails the piecing together of an odd assortment of politics and literature. There is, for instance, the story of how the project was first conceived, and there are the biographies of the men and women who were chosen to lead it. There is the history of how the project was organized in the 48 states, and there are the myriad tactics that were dreamed up to bleed it. There are the writers who worked on it: 26-year-old John Cheever, playing touch football in Washington and feeling he had betrayed his anti-New Deal family by signing on with the project; or young Saul Bellow, compiling lists of magazines '1 Chicago's Newbery Library and envying his triend Isaac Rosenfeld for having the more interesting task of describing the city's pigeon races. There are the nonwriters who worked for it: rumor had it, according to Bernard De Voto, that in one state office a toilet overflowed one day and four journeyman plumbers on the editorial staff volunteered to fix

There are the published works that came out of the project tabout 1,000 books and pamphlets, at a cost of $27,000 for each item, if you overlook what the project saved the country in relief expenses). There are the unpublished works that came on it—valuable manuscripts but ing oust in depositories and waiting to be discovered.

Detroit Finishes With a Margin Of Half-Game

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (UPI). -Marty Pattin won his 17th game on the last day of the season as the Boston Red Sox soapped a five-game Detroit Tigers' winning streak with a 4-1 triumph today over the American League East Division champs.

Both teams played mostly rockles and the victory let Boston finish a half-game behind Detroit. Both teams finished with 70 losses as the Tigers played an extra game because of the players' strike which delayed the start of the season.

Deron Johnson hit a pinch-hit home run in the eighth inning to give Philadelphia a season-ending 2-1 victory over the Cubs in Chicago. Chicago's Billy Williams had a

Nixon Makes a Pass To End TV Blackouts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UPI). -With the nation's No. 1 fan, President Nixon, making the deciits support yesterday behind legislation that would prohibit profeseional sports leagues from imposing television blackouts of home games. Thomas E. Kauper, an assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's anti-trust division, disclosed the President's decision in a 12-page statement to a Senate hearing.

A White House spokesman said "most assuredly." when asked whether the President had made the decision to support the legislation that would affect pro football, baseball, basketball and bockey teams. "Not only that," he said, "the President wants to sign this bill before the Congress goes home." Kauper's statement was aimed at the National Football League, which forbids home game telecasts by stations within a 75-mile radius of the host city. Critics complain the practice frequently blacks out contests for as much as 250 miles or more. "The administration supports a modification of the practice, in connection with package sales of television rights by professional sports leagues, of prohibiting the telecasting of home games in the territory of the home team ..." Kauper testified before a Senate communications subcommittee. "Having received such an exemption, and thereby being allowed to engage in anticompetitive industries, the NFL can surely be required to undertake certain activities in the public interest.

Palmer said that the organizers of the Tokyo tournament had contacted him, but Palmer declined. "I'm the defending champion here," Palmer, 43, said, and once the 72-hole tournament opens tomorrow afternoon at I p.m., Arnie will have his French army. That's the way it's been in the past.

When Palmer came to Parls in 1970 for the first Lancome tournament, there were 22,000 registered golfers in France. Today there are 28,000, "It takes a while for minds to change," said Mourgue d'Algue. "It will take a long time. Ten years maybe," he said about the promotion of golf in France.

And in order to make that move. France, of course, must lure American golfers because "tho French think that the Americans are the best in the world. And rightly so."

Carlton's 27th Equals Record For Southpaws

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (UPI).—Steve Carlton coasted to his 27th victory to the one of Sandy Koufax's records as the Philadelphia Phillies backed him with six home runs, most in the National League this season, to wallop the Chicaro Cubs, 11-1, today.

Cariton, who finished the sea-son with a 27-10 won-lost record, equaled Koufax's mark for victories by a left-handed pitcher in the National League's modern (post-1900) era.

He also pitched his 30th complete game of the season, tops in the majors, raised his league leading strikeout total to 310 with seven strikeouts and reduced his league-leading carned-run average to 1.98.

Because so much uncertainty remains, it is more difficult than ever to assezs the National League season, which begins Saturday. Certain assumptions have to be made, though, Even if the courts decide the players must not play for the WHA this season, it is unlikely the big-salaried stars would return to their old NHL teams. If they did, there would be bitterness and dissension.

playing only part of the time, they extended the Bruins to six cumes in the final series last season. There are no old men on the team, which has proved to itzelf that it doesn't choke. MONTREAL CANADIENS-

They're young and good. They have to find a goalle besides Ken Dryden. In the games he missed last season they were a losing club. The team appears a year away from making it big, although, it could happen this season. Serge Savard has been outstanding against the Russians. They are proud, though, and they are the champions. They also showed in a preseason game that even their rookles can handle the Rangers.

DETROIT RED WINGS-Give them a goalie and they'll make trouble. Ned Harkness's "radical" skating ideas (many of which the Russians employ) don't seem so drastic now. The team, after undergoing a violent shakeup when Harkness became general man-ager, was in contention until the final weeks of the season.

TOPONTO MAPLE LEAFS-Maybe they'll finish from memory. Bernie Parent is a jumper, leaving the nets to a wirened Jacques Plante. Gone, too, is the care of their defense. Scoring threats remain, though, with Paul Henderson, Dave Keon, Ron Ellis and Norm Ullman.

BUFFALO SABRES - They have Gil Perreault and Rick Martin and a beleaguered Roger Crozier in goal. The man at the helm is Punch Imlach, and few are smarter. He might have found a few sleepers in the draft. NEW YORK ISLANDERS-They could finish sixth in the seven-team division in their lirst season. It will take defense and goaltending. They have the goaltending, but their experienced o'efenders have defected. There is a potential high-scoring line in Eilly Harris, Dave Hodson and Germain Gagnon.

VANCOUVER CANUCKS -Some of the younger Canucks have proved hard to handle. Dale Tailon and Joselyn Guevremont are talented, but most of them had disappointing reasons "after organization."

knows. Henry Kissinger has an overwhelming effect on America's foreign policy. But what wasn't recognized until recently is that he Blso seems to be responsible for the health of the stock market.

A broker friend on Wall Street named Jeckel told me: "It's now a Kissinger Market. The prices of stocks go up and down depending on how Wall Street reads Kissinger."

"How is that?"

"Remember last weck the market Bnchwald was down? Then Kissinger flew off to Paris to meet with the North Vietnamese. The market went up. He was supposed to stay for 24 hours. When he extended the stay the market went up again. When he came back he was smiling at the airport; the market went up. "Then he was photographed a day later walking out of the White House frowning. Immecilately the market went down." "You mean the brokers are now buying and selling depending on Rissinger's mood?" "Right. We no longer watch the ticker tape. We all stay glued to the TV hoping to get R glimpse of Henry."

One of Jeckel's partners came over to the desk. He was carrying

British Team Finds Peruvian Cave Painting

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 4 (Reuters). -A British expedition has discovered cave paintings estimated to be at least 10,000 years old in eastern Peru, its members said

The six-man expedition, financed by London's Imperial College and the Royal Geographical Society, found the paintings of animals and hunters in the Huagapo caves 150 miles east of

The paintings are 450 feet underground, hydrologist Julian Coward told reporters.

WASHINGTON. — As everyone a newspaper. "What do you make of this?" Jeckel looked at a photograph on the front page. It was a picture of Henry with B beautiful blonde attending a

> "He looks pretty happy," Jeckel said. "I think we ought to advise our clients to buy."

> "But, wait a minute," the partner said. "Is he happy because he's with the blonde, or is he happy because he's got a peace deal cooking with Hanol?"

Jeckel picked up the magnifying glass and studied the photograph. "It's the same grin he used when he got off the plane from Paris. I think it's a peace

The partner turned to me "You know Kissinger. Does he look like he got something out of his Paris trip, or does he look like he's just looking forward to a nice evening?"

I borrowed the magnifying glass. "It's hard to say. I've seen Kissinger grinning like that when he came back from Paris empty - handed. Sometimes he hates to show his feelings. At the same time he may have made some progress with the North Vietnamese, and none with the Jeckel said: "I think we should put in an order for IBM. Eastman Kodak and American Airlines, just in case."

The partner said: "It's pretty risky on the basis of a newspaper photograph. If we could see him on TV we could get a better idea

One of the securities analysts came rushing in. "Have you seen the afternoon editions? Here's a picture of Kissinger with Nixon!" The two brokers grabbed the paper. "Oh, my God, Henry's frowning." Jeckel said.

"But Nixon is grinning," the partner said. "How do you read that?

I studied the picture. The way I read it. Kissinger didn't get a deal in Paris and he had no luck with the blonde, either. Nixon probably thinks the second part of that is very funny."

Jeckel picked up his phone and shouted into it "SELL, SELL,

Nicole Chapelon, one of 145 teachers sent by France to teach in U.S.

Where the French Teacher Is French

By Roy Reed PAULINA, La. (NYT).—Jean-Poul Chapelon picked up a picture of a mouse and held it high so the children could see. He lifted his eyebrows into Gallic stion marks and demanded of the class, 'Qu'est-ce que c'est?"

"Souris!" cried 25 small Southern voices, the French word rather uncertainly pro-

At the back, the principal of Pauline Elementary School whispered in an Acadian-French accept to a visitor, "These children had completely lost French."

So many youngsters have been losing their French in this onetime French colony that their elders have become alarmed. Some fear that their cultural roots may be destroyed. A delegation of French-speaking Louisianans flew to Paris this summer and persuaded President Georges Pompidou to help them. He agreed to expand the French cultural affairs program, which aiready had 40,000 young people teaching French, mathematics and science in more than 80 nations, to include language teachers for Louisians

In August, 145 young men and women from France arrived in Louisiana. They are now teaching French to thousands of pupils from kindergarten to college age in 20 parishes, or counties.

The male teachers are in a program that permits them to teach abroad for two years instead of serving a year in the French Army. A grateful Louisiana state government has provided $500,000 to pay the larger part of the teachers' salaries. They receive $3,900 a year.

As officials of the two governments see it, both Louisiana and France stand to benefit from the arrangement. The main benefit for France is "sentimental," B strengthening of ancient cultural ities, a spokesman for the French consul-general in New Orleans said.

For Louisians, the benefit is also sentimental. The French settled New Orleans in the early days of the 18th century. A little later in that century more Frenchspeaking people came to the state from Canada, exiled by the British in the Aca-

An estimated 1 million people in Louisiana still speak or understand French. But most of them are middle-aged or elderly. Most children speak only English.

The move toward cultural unity became so powerful early in this century that Louisiana adopted an official policy ofdiscouraging French in its public schools. "Cajum" — Acadian — children along the meandering bayous of southern Louisiana were punished for speaking French on the school playgrounds.

The visiting teachers have been welcomed with an enthusiasm that has astonished some of them. The older people of the communities have been particularly happy to find these young people with whom they can use the lenguage they prefer, the language of their youth.

Underscoring the low profile of their nationalism, the visitors are careful to adapt to the Cajun ways. They have begun to use the Cajun greeting, "Comment on va?", instead of the simple "Ca va?" that is now customary in France.

They are becoming accustomed, some-what more slowly, to being addressed with the familiar "tu" instead of the more formal "yous."

Only the hot weather and the hot, spicy food are giving the visitors much trouble and they are struggling gamely with those "I never worked in school in such a heat —never!" Mr. Chapelon's wife, Nicole, said as she left a class at the neighboring Lutcher Elementary School. ".

The visiting teachers do not attempt to teach French grammar to the younger-children. They concentrate on sounds and on oral give-and-take. Every first-grader in the Paulina school seems to know how to count to 10 in Ferneh. When one meets Mr. Chapelon in the hallway the pupil will start counting, on a signal from the teach-
